DIED OF HIS INJURIES.

A Switchman at the Steel Works Run Over.

George Collins, a single man aged 23 living at 1223 Elm street, Bessemer, and employed as a switchman at the steel works, died at the C. F. & I. hospital at 8:35 o'clock last evening as the result of injuries received yesterday morning while at work.

He attempted to jump on one of the middle cars of a moving train but slipped and fell under the wheels which passed over his left leg below the knee crushing it badly. He sustained severe bruises besides. He was removed to the company's hospital where the injured member was amputated but the shock from the injury was too great and he died without rallying.
