John Froney, 8 year old son of Pete Froney, of 229 Victoria avenue, had his head crushed by a large stone last evening at 6:30.

A large block of stone such as is used in sidewalks was standing on edge on the west side of Victoria avenue, 100 yards north of the bridge. It had been left by the men who are laying a sidewalk along the street and was all ready to be put in place today. Mrs. Jennie Walsh, who was sitting in her doorway, 150 feet away, saw the boy come running up to the stone and begin pushing against it with both hands. At last the stone began to rock to and fro and finally it fell slowly over toward the boy. Apparently not realizing his danger he made no attempt to get away but kept pushing against the stone.

Before Mrs. Walsh could warn the child the block fell upon him crushing his head and killing him instantly.

No one was on the street when the accident occurred. Mrs. Walsh ran out of her house screaming and soon brought the neighbors to the spot. Mr. Walsh and another man pried up the stone and removed the body of the boy. His head was badly crushed the brains being forced out his head. The body was removed to an undertaker's.

Mr. and Mrs. Froney were prostrated by the accident. It seems that their little son had eaten supper not five minutes before his death.
