Second floor of Rawlings Library closed

PUEBLO, Colo.– The Pueblo City-County Library District has temporarily closed the second floor of the Rawlings Library to make improvements. The closure will last approximately six weeks. While the floor is closed materials have been relocated to the first floor meeting rooms for continued browsing. DVD and audio fiction titles may be found in Bret Kelly Room A. Public Internet computers are now located in the Bret Kelly Room B. A limited collection of fiction, non-fiction and large print books can be found in the Thurston meeting room and popular items from Teen Central have been moved to Youth Services. Staff will be available to facilitate holds for access to additional materials.

When open, the second floor will host a variety of new features including a newly organized “sky wing” with large print and fiction collections and additional space for customers to sit, read and use their own devices. A remodeled non-fiction section with a newly carpeted, attractively arranged area for browsing will also be available. An improved and spacious technology/media center with computers, iPads, DVDs, CDs and other media is in the works. Finally, there will be a new Teen Central area and a glassed-in makerspace room where patrons of all ages can create and work together on a variety of hands-on projects.
