Library hosts free nonprofit workshops on fundraising and collaboration

PUEBLO, Colo. – PCCLD is offering two free workshops for nonprofits concerning individual fundraising and organizational collaboration. The nonprofit course Raising Individual Donations will be held on Monday, July 23 at 1 p.m. and Understanding Collaboration will be held on Thursday, Aug. 9 at 11 a.m. Both workshops will be held at the Rawlings Library, 100 E. Abriendo Ave. in the Ryals Room – 4th floor. For more information or to register, call 562-5626.

Raising Individual Donations will teach successful approaches to raising individual donations and making personal inquiries for funds. More than 80 percent of giving comes from individuals. This workshop will aid in understanding how to make an effective request for donations. At this workshop, learn to build confidence in responding to your donors and improve fundraising effectiveness.

Understanding Collaboration will discuss the framework for forging successful, collaborative relationships. At this workshop, understand why nonprofits are choosing to collaborate with a myriad of organizations and how successful collaboration can greatly benefit nonprofit organizations.

Both workshops, Raising Individual Donations and Understanding Collaboration, are free and open to the public. While both events are free, reservations are recommended by calling 562-5626.
