Just Read

by Jon Walker

Were you a born reader? I was not. Dick and Jane did little to spark my interest in reading as a youngster and, yet, now I direct an institution that promotes reading and literacy among its key values.

What changed? How did I transform from reluctant reader to librarian?

Comics is how it began for me. Perhaps this is surprising. I was first captivated by the colorful and imaginative illustrations in comic books as a young child even before I could read at all. My older brother is seven years my senior, and he had collected a fascinating comic collection by the time I was a tyke. A bit later, I also discovered the comic strips in my family's daily newspaper.

Before I could read as a toddler, I poured over the pictures on the pages and invented stories I believed matched the sequences of drawings. In the end, however, conjuring my own plotline was not completely satisfying. My curiosity to understand the author's intended narrative motivated in me a desire to know more. This is all it took and, importantly, this also is what it took to spur my aspirations to read. Honestly, school reading assignments had little interest for me. My drive to read started with a craving to better comprehend the comics I loved.

New at the district:

Lynda.com is now available to all residents of Pueblo County with non-expired library cards. Get access to over 128,000 video classes on subjects ranging from Excel to Business Leadership. Each course in Lynda's catalog is composed of 5-10 minute video segments. Create accounts within Lynda to track learning and store certificates of completion for certain courses. Access Lynda.com through a desk computer, laptop or the Lynda app on most mobile devices. Visit www.pueblolibrary.org/onlineresourceslist.

Sangre de Cristo Arts Center family passes are available for check out starting Monday, June 1 through Monday, Aug. 31. Children under the age of 13 years old must be with an adult. A limit of one pass may be checked out at once by one person. Check out length: up to seven days. Ask library staff for details.

Parents should keep this in mind when working to encourage children to read. Reading is fundamentally important. Studies show that learning and practicing this skill in youth correlates to a higher quality of life later in adulthood. Plainly stated, the better you read, the more apt you are to succeed.

It can be difficult to compel children to read outside the framework of their own personal interests. Seek opportunities instead to engage young people on their own terms. Look for reading that arouses their imagination and fulfills their innate spirit of inquiry. Assigned reading in school is important, but also search for reading options that satisfy each child's individual tastes and interests. Connect to this impulse and the child will benefit greatly. Evidence shows that generally those who are better readers are those who want to read and who read more.

The library district offers help for this. One example is the library's Summer Reading club. It starts this month and runs until August. It is designed especially to provide programming, events and activities to promote reading for fun. Our goal is simple. We aim to keep kids reading all summer long. We do not focus on assigned reading. Read whatever motivates. Just read!

Changes with Overdue Fines:

Currently, accounts with over $25 in overdue fees (book or other item included in the charge) are sent to collections, and a $10 charge for collection is assessed. After the collection company tries for several weeks to collect those debts, if not paid, they are sent on to credit reporting.

Effective July 1, charges on library cards of $25 or more (even if no item is attached), will be sent to collections, and on to credit reporting if the debt is not satisfied.

NEW: Small balance program where accounts owing $10- $24.99 sent to collections if not paid. Not sent to credit reporting; fee of $3 added to account. These changes are being made to provide earlier notice to the patron of charges on their account. Questions? Please call 562-5600.

In April, students from Pueblo City Schools and District 70 participated in the Read OUT LOUD! program held at Rawlings Library. The students learned about story writing and illustrating from author/illustrator Jarrett J. Krosoczka (pictured top right).

The 25th Anniversary Outstanding Women Award was commissioned by local artist, Kate Fox.

Winners of the 2015 Poetry Contest sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

134 women were honored at the 25th Anniversary of the Outstanding Women Awards during a luncheon at Rawlings Library in May.

"These ARE the books you're looking for!" said the Storm Troopers who invaded Giodone Library for May the Fourth Be With You day.

Open Mic Night was held at Giodone Library in April.
