October 2011 ~ All Pueblo Reads edition

PRINTED THANKS TO THE GENEROUS SUPPORT OF FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARY

All Pueblo Reads 2011 takes flight

This year's All Pueblo Reads is sure to be a Hoot! The Pueblo City-County Library District is kicking off a great community-wide-literary project, All Pueblo Reads! This is the seventh year of the All Pueblo Reads Project and features Hoot! by Carl Hiaasen. This month-long project features a variety of events that are based on themes in the book including environmental themes.

All Pueblo Reads VIP Kickoff Reception Artist Radeaux Friday, Sept. 30 at 7 p.m. Pueblo West Library

Take the opportunity to meet artist Radeaux and celebrate the start of All Pueblo Reads. While taking in the art and bid on silent auction items which benefit the library district. A portion of all art sales will benefit PCCLD. Radeaux has provided illustrations for a variety of publications. He painted the covers and illustrations for the Colorado Breeding Bird Atlas.

Centers for New Information Technology by Jon Walker

I am very pleased this month that the Pueblo City-County Library District is unveiling its Centers for New Information Technology. The Centers are located at both the Rawlings Library and the Barkman Library and feature public availability of new digital wireless information devices such as the Apple iPad2 and laptops. Customers now have the opportunity to check out these items free-of-charge for use either in the library or outside the library in the comfort and convenience of home, office or school.

Our mission at the Pueblo City-County Library District includes the notion that public libraries are vital to insuring free and open access to information. This principle, in turn, is one key to the success of our American democracy. More and more, this is turning out to mean the library plays host to a variety of emerging information formats. This, of course, is in addition to the venerable book. The idea that information comes in forms other than books is not new. Our library has supported access to information in microfilm and microfiche, video and audio cassette, and, in recent years, via computers, to name only a few of the formats. We are pleased now to unveil yet another stage in the evolution of information delivery via the library. Now, you can check out wireless e-readers, laptops and electronic tablets.

This is an important step for the library and our community. Insuring that everyone has access to the latest in wireless digital information technologies helps bridge what some have called "the great digital divide." This is the gap between individuals at different socio-economic levels with regard to their opportunities to access information technologies. While this gap has narrowed recently, it is noteworthy that recent studies show that 41 percent of all adults still do not have access to the Internet through wireless connections. Our hope is the Centers for New Information Technology will help bridge this divide.

This project is provided with special help from the United States Department of Commerce, the Frank I. Lamb Foundation, and the Friends of the Library. We are grateful for their assistance. Without it, we would be longer delayed in making this service available to the members of our community who need it. I also would like to thank a core group of library employees who helped steer this project, including Richard Tucey, Bill Seidel, Andrew Bregar, Steve Antonuccio, and Carol Rooney, among others.

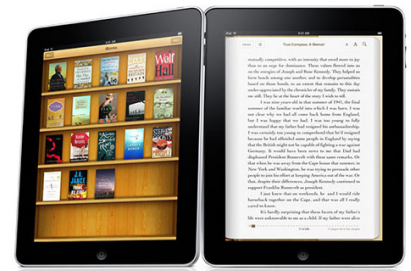

I encourage you to visit or contact the Centers for New Information Technology at either the Barkman Library (562-5680) or the Rawlings Library (562-5601) to "check out" the new service.

Announcing: Centers for New Information Technology at Rawlings & Barkman libraries

Saturday, Oct. 1 at 3 p.m.
Rawlings Library, 2nd floor

Come see the evolution of library-offered technology at the grand opening of the Center for New Information Technology. As part of a federal technology grant, the Rawlings and Barkman libraries will be launching new technology services with an open house and equipment demonstration! Funded by the federal Broadband Technologies Opportunities Program grant, the Frank I. Lamb Foundation and the Friends of the Library, the Pueblo City-County Library District is opening the Centers for New Information Technology at the Rawlings and Barkman libraries.

Test-drive the latest technology including iPads, nooks™ and laptops at the "petting zoo" of technology provided by Barnes and Noble and Best Buy. Staff will be available to demonstrate the new technology and explain the new policy for checking out the devices. The ribbon cutting for the centers will occur at 3 p.m. and refreshments will be served.

Independent Movie

Green Fire (NR)

Saturday, Oct. 15 at 7 p.m.

Rawlings Library, InfoZone Theatre - 4th floor

Green Fire was produced in partnership between the Aldo Leopold Foundation, the Center for Human and Nature and the US Forest Service. The film provocatively examines Leopold's thinking, renewing his idea of a land ethic for a population facing 21st century ecological challenges. Green Fire attempts to challenge viewers to contemplate their own relationship with the land communities.

Community Cinema

Deaf Jam (NR)

Thursday, Oct. 27 at 6:30 p.m.

Rawlings Library, InfoZone Theatre - 4th floor

National poetry slams for youth have been gaining momentum but few, if any, deaf teams have ever been included in these contests. In Deaf Jam a group of New York City deaf teens reveal their passions, frustrations and senses of humor as they discover American Sign Language poetry. These passionate individuals eventually step into the world of the youth poetry slams with their hearing peers.

Book Discussion

Food inc.: A Participants Guide

Thursday, Oct. 6 at 6:30 p.m.

Rawlings Library, Ryals Room

Food, Inc. investigates modern food practices in America and suggests that the food industry alters food from their natural states and creates something different than what is perceived as coming out of a traditional, pastoral farm. Food Inc. shows the alterations that have happened in the food system through the late 20th century and shows that the food on our plate does not resemble what our ancestors set on their tables just 60 years ago.

Documentary Movie Night

Food Inc.

Wednesday, Oct. 12 at 6:30 p.m.

Rawlings Library, Ryals Room

Trustee Talk by Jim Stuart

Years become memorable for special things that have happened in your personal life, both good and bad. Such as the birth of your first child, death of your mother, the year you were married and the year you graduated from high school. Other years are remembered because of national events and crisis, like the year man first stepped on the moon, the attack on Pearl Harbor which started World War II for the U.S., the year 9/11 happened and the year the new millennium started. Well, I think 2011 will be remembered in the life of the Pueblo City-County Library District for some reasons that may not be that apparent right now but will be recognized in the future. So, here are the major beginnings that are going on at PCCLD that will become important events in our future:

1. The Pueblo Library Foundation is being formed and will begin its life in 2011. While this little "baby" of a foundation is just getting its start, our vision for this organization is that it will become a major factor in sustaining our library system far into the future.

2. ARFID (radio frequency identification) study is underway, and hopefully will be implemented next year, which will dramatically affect how our materials are handled internally and checked out by our customers. All materials will have a tiny unique electronic chip that can be detected and recognized by equipment in the library for much simpler check-out, plus easier sorting and handling internally.

3. Serious consideration of an additional branch library on the East Side and other areas of Pueblo County is underway, fulfilling part of our long-range strategic plan. It is yet unknown just how this will play, out but we are working hard on researching ways we can fund these branch libraries which will help underserved Puebloans. I think there is a good chance that if affordable funding mechanisms can be found that this expansion of our services will happen in the near future.

4. For the first time electronic devices, laptop computers, iPads and nooks™, were checked out from our library system. This new service is still in its testing stage and hopefully will be expanded to be a major service offered by PCCLD.

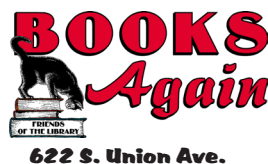

All of these changes and services have been talked about for quite some time and will, in some cases, be more evident in future years, but they all got their spark of life in 2011, which will make this odd numbered year a special one in our history.

Friends of the Library president's corner by Annette Warfield

October is a busy and exciting month for our library. The Centers for New Information Technology open at the Rawlings and Barkman Libraries on Saturday, October 1. Patrons can now check out an iPad, nook™, or laptop. With a $6,000 donation, FOL is one of the sponsors of this new service.

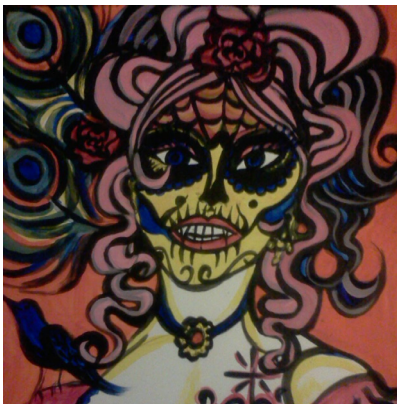

Also this month, All Pueblo Reads activities begin. I hope many of you will have an opportunity to attend some of the 100+ activities planned for this big event. For the last several years, Friends has been a major contributor to All Pueblo Reads. FOL's contribution to this year's event was $15,500. Each fall many Puebloans look forward to All Pueblo Reads. Plan to take part and enjoy this library community event. This October, FOL also sponsors the awards ceremony given for the winners of the Scary Story Writing Contest. Volunteers will be reading stories in preparation for the awards ceremony. The winning stories will be recognized on Nov. 3 at 7:00 p.m. in the Ryals Room—always a very fun event.

Last month Books Again book store offered a tremendous bargain to the public. All fiction hardbacks were sold for $2 each. Included in this special sale were western history nonfiction hardbacks. Revenue for Books Again from the three-day sale was over $2,500. Of course not all sales during these three days were sale purchases; but the sale provided a wonderful three-day total for Books Again. A conservative estimate is that the sale cleared the shelves of somewhere between 750 to 800 hardbacks. Thank you to all the Books Again volunteers for their hard work and dedication during the three days. Thanks, too, to our wonderful patrons who made the sale a success.

Speaking of sales and bargains, the semiannual Books-by-the-Bag sale will be held as usual the first full weekend of October. Get your friends and be ready to stock up on your winter supply of good reading. Friends members can enjoy filling their bags on October 6. On Oct. 7 and 8 the sale is open to the general public. The book store will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Remember, a bag of books is only $7. Now, how can you beat that!?

Other book store news is the announcement that Melanie Tappen has decided to conclude her duties as book store manager. Melanie took over management of the bookstore from the original managers, Bud and Margaret Benz. Those of you who know Melanie understand what a tremendous and positive effect she has had on the bookstore. To say she will be missed, would be an understatement. The good news is Melanie will stay on as a bookstore volunteer. After a brief break and beginning in January, 2012, Melanie will be working on Mondays and serving as the Monday manager. The Friends organization is grateful to Melanie for her unselfish dedication and professionalism during her tenure. A huge "thank you" goes out to Melanie!

October 16-22, 2011, has been designated by the American Library Association as National Friends of Libraries Week. If you are not a member, this would be a good time to join. If you are a member, please renew your membership when asked. I leave you with the ALA motto: "Friend Your Library."

Hispanic Resource Center Featured Artist: Eva Marie Fatta

Through October

Rawlings Library, Hispanic Resource Center, 2nd floor

Eva Marie Fatta is an abstract expressionist oil painter from Pueblo. She has her Bachelor's of Fine Arts degree with an emphasis in oil painting. Eva is a self-taught artist with a background in digital art, photography and design. After completing her thesis work entitled, Wrecked and Salvaged at the Metropolitan State College of Denver, she has received many awards and recognition through various websites and organizations. For more information on this exhibit or the Hispanic Resource Center, please call 562-5615.

Dia de los Muertos Celebration at the library!

Tuesday, Nov. 1 at 6 p.m.
