Winter Magic

Some days seem like they never end. But sometimes, the solution is looking for the things that make you happy. If you look close enough, you can find magic in anything if you just believe you can.

Charles the Snowman

One day a snowman named Charles had no arms! Nor a crown or scarf. He only had a top hat. The next day he woke up from the frost and snow, and saw someone with a scarf, crown and arms so he decided to talk to her. He wondered where she got the scarf and crown and arms. She said, "Well, I made it happen." "I don't quite understand," Charles said back. "Well, I made them," she said. That night Charles was very sleepy so when he went to sleep and woke up, he immediately thought of what she meant so he started working on his scarf and his crown but he made them different like he wanted them and other snowmen were very happy for him.

Gingerbread House
Good to eat but hard
Icy and sweet
North Pole so far and cold
Grey clouds hovering above
Every house different and sweet
Reindeer flying once a year
Bells ringing when Santa comes around
Roaring fires under the chimney
Eating snickerdoodle cookies with milk
Arctic blast opening presents
Decorations lighting up the village
Hot cocoa with marshmallows and cookies
Ornaments shining from the tree
Under the tree many of presents
Sledding down the snowy mountain
Ever so cold with rosey cheeks

Lois Holloway

Rudolf Express

This artwork is of a train, the Rudolf Express, flying over presents, trees and ornaments during the night. I liked the idea of a train and I wanted to make it Christmas and for it to be unique so I made a Rudolf train leading Christmas throughout the night. In this piece I used Govache and colored pencils. I started with a layer of blue and built up the presents, trees, ornaments, train and sky. After the painting was done, I added details and highlights with colored pencils to further build up the artwork until it was finished.

Kimberly Gomez

Grinch

Grindy and grouchy
Rude with a little rage
I see toy snowflakes inside globe
Naughty with a nasty attitude
Crazy for Christmas
Humble even with a tiny heart

Alina Lopez

Winter Art

I chose to make Christmas things into humans. I chose to do a candycane, penguin and snowman. Penguin is on the far right. She is dressed formally in black and white with yellow accents. Snowgirl is in the middle. She is wearing a top hat with carrot orange bow, a white button down puffer jacket and a scarf. Candycane is on the far left. She is in an overall skirt with a poofy sleeved shirt, striped socks and braids. Behind them is a traditionally decorated tree with oranges, cranberries, popcorn, candles and a wooden star topper. Behind the tree there are stockings hanging over a window with each characters name written on it. Outside the window are trees on a snowy hillside as it snows. On the old wooden floor there are presents ready to be opened. Framing the window are big red curtains pulled back to reveal the snowy landscape. Everything was done in watercolor then outlined in Sharpie to make the lines pop.
