FALLS TO HER DEATH THROUGH SHAFT IN HUSBAND'S PRESENCE

Mrs. Timothy Barbrick Victim of Awful Tragedy While Inspecting Warehouse

Evidently failing to notice a shaft for a stairway in the new building of the McClelland Grain company under the C street viaduct, Mrs. Nellie Green Barbrick, wife of Timothy Barbrick, one of the managers of the company, fell a distance of 11 feet and was almost instantly killed yesterday afternoon. The unfortunate woman died a moment after a physician arrived, her neck having been broken when she struck on her head on a cement floor.

Mr and Mrs. Barbrick had been out driving in the afternoon and about 4:30 o'clock Mrs. Barbrick suggested that they inspect the new warehouse that is being constructed by the grain and mercantile company. Her husband consented to show her through the building and they had about completed a tour of inspection and were on the first floor, when Mr. Barbrick turned to lock a door, talking to his wife as he labored with the obstinate key. Finally turning he was surprised to see that his wife was not there and he called to her several times. Then he noticed the open shaft, and with many misgivings, he looked down to the bottom, where he saw the limp form of Mrs. Barbrick on the cement floor of the basement, 11 feet below.

The frightened husband hurried to the side of his wife, but was unable to carry her up to the floor above, as the stairs are not in place, and running to the street he secured help and summoned Dr A. L. Fugard. Mrs. Barbrick died after having maintained a pulse for almost twenty minutes, although she uttered no word.

The fact that Mrs. Barbrick uttered no screams as she fell can be accounted for only by surmising that she was standing dangerously near the open shaft, and that, backing up a step, she was precipitated over backwards. Not seeing her impending danger it is thought that she probably gasped and the drawing in of her breath, as is common on such occasions, permitted her to emit no noise that could be heard by her husband.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Barbrick have resided in Pueblo for a long period and were well and favorably known by a wide circle of friends. The family reside at 430 west Abriendo avenue, where the remains have been taken. A son, John, left only yesterday forenoon for Boulder to re-enter the State university. His father was able to intercept the young man at Denver and he returned to Pueblo last night.

Besides her husband and son, she leaves one brother, T. F. Green, formerly proprietor of a grocery store on the south side, and a niece, Miss Alma Scobie, and nephew, Frank Scobie, of Duluth, Minn. The remains are in charge of the United Undertaking Co., and the funeral announcement will be made later.
