court room habitues, there being constantly a large attendance of people who cannot keep away from a criminal court when anything is going on.

SOME MISSTATEMENTS.

To the Editor of the CHIEFTAIN:

PUEBLO, January 16, 1891.—As I have been misstated in what I said to a Press reporter, I would in justice to myself like to have you publish this in your morning CHIEFTAIN:

I did not say that I saw Bennett start across the street. Neither did I say that I had ever seen Bennett standing near the scab barber shop owned by the man who did the shooting trying to play the boycott act, and have never seen him, the said Bennett, anywhere near that shop or heard him say one word about the men or shop. Respectfully,

L. P. GETMAN.

To the Ladies of Pueblo.

In order to make room for a large spring and summer stock of millinery which one of our firm is now east buying, we will for the next few weeks sell every-
