Finds Dead One on River Levee

"There's a dead man on the levee," said an excited man, dashing in the rear entrance to the jail. Jailor I. W. Osborne made a Dorando to the spot.

"Sure, he's dead," said Osborne. "Dead drunk."

With a right shoulder shift Osborne carried him to a cell. If Osborne keeps up this pace no electric or gasoline patrol wagon will be needed, at all, at all.

William M. Owens is his name as he was recognized by his confreres on the inside, who are awaiting an opportunity to go out and do as William did.

PERSONALS

E. C. Holderman left yesterday for Roswell, N. M.

P. H. Bair, traveling passenger agent of the Grand Trunk railway with headquarters at Kansas City, was a visitor in Pueblo yesterday.

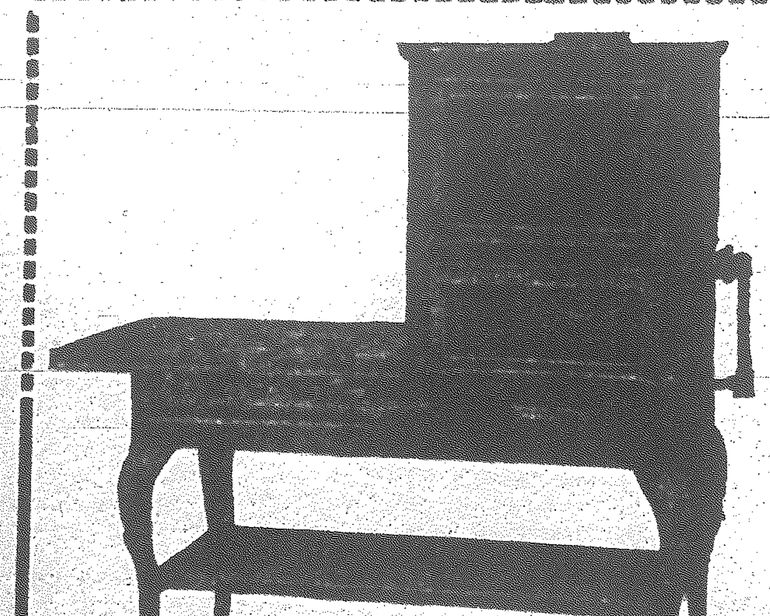

Miss Grace Hadley, stenographer in the Colorado and Southern freight and ticket office, who was called to Emporia, Kas., recently by the death of her father, has returned to this city. Miss Hadley received a telegram announcing the serious illness of her father and hastened at once to Emporia, but death had beaten her to the home, and she was just a few hours late to see her father alive. The deceased was an old resident of Emporia, and was highly respected by the community in which he had made his home for many years.
