is $1,149.67 credited to the estate of A. D. Anderson, $852.80 to the estate of Thomas Brennan, $257.90 to the estate of Frank Skeral and $184.10 credited to the estate of Richard Rosser, besides a number of other estates where the amounts are very small. All of the persons named are dead and no one has appeared to claim their money, which has been in the hands of the treasurer for years.

After the lapse of many more years, when there is no possibility of any claimants appearing for the money, it will probably revert to the county for public use. The county is not now permitted to use any of the money for any purpose whatsoever so there it lies, idle and useless to anyone.

Attended by a very large concourse of sorrowing friends, the remains of the late Judge William P. Beck were yesterday afternoon laid to rest in Riverview cemetery. Services were held at Holy Trinity church conducted by Rev. E. P. Newton, the pastor. Before beginning the service opportunity was given to view the remains and many came to the church early for a last look at the well known features of the departed jurist. The Episcopal ritual was used and a full choir assisted with appropriate musical selections. The floral offerings were numerous and of beautiful design; one of the largest being a pillow of roses sent by the Pueblo Bar association. It was carried by S. D. Trimble. At the grave services were conducted by Rev. A. K. Harsha. Pallbearers were Judge J. H. Voorhees, Judge N. Walter Dixon, Judge J. C. Elwell, A. W. Lennard, G. W. Collins and Juan Rayner.
