of trouble with a farmer down there, testify in the case.

WORSNOP CLOUGH WAS ONE OF FIRST CARRIERS

The funeral of the late pioneer, Worsnop Clough, who died suddenly Saturday evening of heart failure, will take place from the family residence, 726 Center street at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and from the First Baptist church at 2:30. Interment will be made in the Mason's portion of the Pueblo cemetery.

At the time of his death Mr. Clough was 61 years of age. He was born in Bradford, England, November 10, 1845, and came to Pueblo in 1887. He had scarcely reached his majority when he went to Kansas and after spending a few years at Junction City, located near Fort Reynolds, at the mouth of the Huerfano, where he engaged in the cattle business with his brother, Alfred Clough. It was while living at Fort Reynolds that he married Miss Anna S. Hildreth, in 1883, who survives him.

During all his years in Pueblo Mr. Clough was employed by the government as a mail carrier, dying in the service. He was one of the few carriers first put on in Pueblo. He was a Master Mason and an active member of the National Association of Letter Carriers.

He leaves a wife and daughter, and also a brother and sister, the last two being in England.
