MRS. FINK INJURED IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Mrs. Charles Fink, wife of the east side meat dealer, is lying at the home of Mrs. Charles Geiser, 708 east Second street, suffering from injuries received in a runaway accident yesterday forenoon. She was thrown from one of Seiter's delivery wagons, between First and Second on Granite street, sustaining a sprained right ankle, ruptured blood vessel, dislocation of the great toe on the right foot and numerous painful bruises. Fortunately no internal injuries were sustained.

In the vehicle at the time the horse became frightened were John Seiter and Mrs. Fink's little son. Mr. Seiter was thrown out immediately after the animal started to run, as was also the boy, but neither was injured to any extent. Mrs. Fink had made some purchases at Seiter's confectionery and, on account of the unfinished condition of the Fourth street viaduct, accepted an invitation to ride to her home at 724 east Fifth street in Seiter's delivery wagon. After the accident she was taken to the Geiser residence where the attending physician, Dr. Ortigt, advised that she remain until sufficiently recovered to be removed to her home. Since there are no internal injuries it is not believed that the affair will terminate seriously.

Obituary

Sarah Ann Rood passed to where "beyond these voices there is rest and peace," on May 1, 1904, at the age of 59 years. The same, with her husband, from Byron, Ogle county, Illinois, to Colorado in 1873, seeking for health. Under the influence of the beautiful sunshine she lived in comparative comfifort until about two years ago. In the winter her husband took her to visit her brother in Tyndall, South Dakota, hoping the change might prove beneficial. Here the end came. Her remains were brought back to Pueblo. Her funeral was held from the home of her only child, Jesse Rood, 1113 Greenwood street. Mrs. Rood was all her life long an ardent lover of Christ. She gave her friends a most touching, beautiful Christian farewell e're she left them. She leaves them a rich legacy of hope.

"Passing out of the shadow
Into a purer light,
Stepping behind the curtain
Getting a clearer sight;
Laying aside the burden,
This weary mortal coil,
Done with the world's vexations,
Done with its tears and toils,
Freed from all earth's playthings,
Heart sick and ready to sleep,
Ready to bid our friends farewell,
Wondering why they weep.
Passing out of the shadow
Into eternal day,
Why do they call it dying?
'Tis a sweet going away."

CREWS-BEGGS

Good Sense

An eminent New York advertising expert struck a responsive chord here when he gave vent to the following:

"'Chickens come home to roost' is as true as occasionally misrepresents its merchandise to it in-kite, and the store that habitually or even consumers cannot hope to build up a successful, permanent trade. IT SHOULD BE REMEMBERED THAT WOMEN WHO SHOP ARE FAIRLY WELL POSTED on qualities, values and styles in all the lines representing goods that women wear.

SOON FOUND OUT.

"When an article has been misrepresented or the truth stretched the woman's pride is hurt, and CAN SHE BE BLAMED if she becomes as mad as the proverbial March hare and loses no opportunity to spread the facts among her friends? WHO CAN ESTIMATE THE INJURY TO THAT STORE? Experience has taught that the stores doing the most profitable business at minimum expense are those whose word is strictly reliable. ALL THE PEOPLE CAN'T BE FOOLED ALL THE TIME."

About Our New Shoes AGAIN THE TANS

Fashion again approves Tan Oxfords, so we have them. JUST FROM THE MAKER comes a swell model in a Tan Oxford, Blucher style. The sole is an elastic welting, extension, with fair stitch. Heels full military and tip is grained fair leather. As Oxfords are usually sold this would be a prime line at $3.50.

They are marked at $3.00 a pair.

The other low shoes are here, too, in the handsomest of the new handsome leathers and in the highest type of elegance and style known to the craft.

Low Shoe prices are $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $2.00 and $2.50. We do not believe it is necessary for ANYBODY to pay more for an Oxford.

—WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN (if you prefer it that way), whether the bill is large or small, in FURNITURE, CARPETS, RUGS, CROCKERY, STOVES, HOUSE FURNISHINGS, etc., and you pay only the plain marked price that every one else must pay, whether for cash or credit.

A VERY UNUSUAL PROPOSITION, as you'll grant, but we have tried it for five years and are satisfied with results. It brings no serious burden to our treasurer and it has helped hundreds to fit up cozy homes with time to pay and not a dollar added for the accommodation. INVESTIGATION COSTS NOTHING.

COGHLAN IN NEW PLAY DRAWS SMALL AUDIENCE

Rose Coghlan, supported by a company the merits of which were commensurate with her position in the theatrical world, appeared at the Grand last night in "The Greatest Thing in the World," a four act drama by Harriet Ford and Beatrice DeMille.

The theme of the play is contracted into the subject of maternal love, a sort of crystalization of the master passion from the standpoint of a devoted mother, although the authors do not forget that young men and women are also deeply affected by love in its various forms. Barring a tendency toward too much detail, the play is strong and the theme as handled cannot be otherwise than wholesome. That Pueblo's nerve not particularly interested in either Miss Coghlan or the play was demonstrated by the small audience present.

As a star, Miss Coghlan has long held her established place. In her present play she enjoys the advantage of having a play well suited to her. The supporting company is exceptionally evenly balanced, and there are several members of the cast who divide honors with the star, Sydney Irving, as Cecil, the son who brings about the play's denouement, shows the elemental qualifications of a first rate star, commanding the interest and sympathy of the audience at all times. Adequate stage accessories contributed toward the finish of the performance.

Discussing Probabilities.

By Associated Press.

London, May 10.—In the absence of further stirring news from the seat of war the London newspapers are discussing the probable course of events.

The balance of opinion inclines to the belief that General Kuroki will succeed in overtaking the Russians between Feng Wang Cheng and Liao Yang and will compel them to fight at a disadvantage.

It is argued that it will be impossible for General Kuropatkin, depending upon a slender line of railway and with his army encumbered with baggage to make his retirement speedy enough to enable him to choose his own ground for battle. On the other hand, it is argued that, apart from Lieutenant General Zassulitch's error in giving battle on the Yalu against the orders of General Kuropatkin, the latter's plans remain unchanged, and that once away from the mountainous country, he will have conditions more in his favor.

The question of the possibility of the Japanese finding a weak spot in the defense of Port Arthur is also much debated, and it is believed in some quarter that they will repeat the tactics employed in the war with China and attempt an assault through the western defenses, which are known to be the weakest.

Dispatches from Shanghai say that the Tartar arrived at Mukden has decided to obey Viceroy Alexieff's order that the Chinese evacuate Mukden.
