MOTHER AND DAUGHTER PERISH TOGETHER

Mrs. Alfred Downing and her daughter, Carrie B. Downing, who lost their lives in the Eden railway disaster, August 7, had been residents of Pueblo county for about four years, coming to this city from Chicago.

Mrs. Downing was born in Cleveland, Ohio, and was the daughter of Col. Jonathan Williams, one of the early settlers of that city. She passed her youth in Cleveland, removing to Peoria, Ill., when but a young woman and later was married to Alfred Downing.

The family afterward removed to Chicago, where they lived until the spring of 1906. In March of that year the daughter, Carrie B. Downing, secured a position as saleswoman with the firm of Moch Bros. of this city, and had been employed by them continuously since that time.

Miss Downing was possessed of a lovable disposition and was very popular with her many friends and acquaintances in Pueblo. The family lived on the Vineland road about four miles east of Pueblo, and in order to be with her parents as much as possible she drove in to the store in the early morning and home again in the evening almost every working day of the year.

Her mother was a bright, well educated woman and by united efforts they were endeavoring to make a home in the west. At the time of the accident Miss Downing was taking a vacation of two weeks, one of which had been passed at home. On the fatal Sunday, accompanied by her mother, she made her first visit to Denver. Miss Downing was a faithful, loving daughter, having devoted her life to the care of her parents.

The husband and father, 70 years of age, and one married daughter, Mrs. J. L. Devine of Chica[illegible] are the surviving members of the family.

The funeral services were held at the First M. E. church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. S. B. Warner, and the interment at Riverview cemetery, Pueblo.
