ACT OUT MURDER IN COURT ROOM

"If you ain't dead, I'll finish you."

This is what Fred Walker said last Sunday night as he watched the prostrate form of Link Earl, according to the testimony of Bernard Graves, a negro by stander, in the preliminary examination held before Justice Seltz yesterday afternoon. Walker was bound over to the district court for appearance June 3, charged with murder in the first degree. Both Walker and the man killed are negroes.

Clyde Hudson, another negro who saw the killing, acted out the tragedy with assistant district attorney, C. B. Hughes posing as the victim. The lawyer's table served to represent the bench across which Walker lunged with the fatal bat, and the railing which fences off the spectators' section in the little courtroom, served as the fence which held Earl from dodging before the impromptu weapon.

Walker did not testify, but remarks made by him indicated that self defense would be his justification for the deed. Bernard Graves and Clyde Hudson, as principal witnesses, were placed under bonds of $200 each for appearance at the trial.

BLANC AWARDED $250 JUDGMENT

Henry Blanc was awarded judgment in the sum of $250 last night by the jury in the case of Blanc against Eugene Doherty, after a two-hours deliberation. The case had been on trial two days this week and one day last week, in Judge Rizer's division of the district court.
