GRIEF STRICKEN PUEBLO MOURNS ITS DEAD

the Denver and Rio Grande, one of the survivors, had a narrow escape.

"I was sitting in the front end of the forward sleeper, Wyuta," he said, "near the door. The train had slowed up on account of the bad condition of the tracks, and I think we were going about fifteen miles per hour, when all at once I felt a sudden jolt, then a terrific crash, and our car turned almost on its front end. I rushed to the platform and saw before me nothing but a black, raging torrent, with three coaches whirling down the stream. It was horrible, horrible. I have never experienced anything like the awful sensation that came over me, when I saw the cars packed with human beings floating down that raging flood. The water was rushing against the banks with terrible velocity and no human being, it seemed to me, could ever withstand that awful current.

"Strangely enough there was hardly any screaming. I listened to hear the cries but it was all over in a moment and the coaches whirled away down the stream with loads of human beings. Apparently the people were swallowed up in the flood, the water surging into the coaches and drowning them instantly. There was not a sound. I heard no calls for help.

"I reached the bank and joined with those who were trying to rescue the lost. I worked as best I could, but hope I shall never see anything like this again. It was terrible, it was terrible."

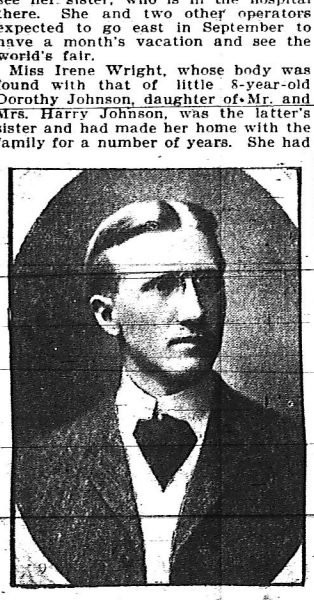

Puebloans Perish by Wholesale

Mrs. George F. West came prominently before the public through her husband, Mayor West, who died in December, 1901, during his incumbency. At the time of his death he and Mrs. West resided in their cozy home at 321 Michigan street, and after that she continued to live there very retiringly, retaining her interest in the West Bros.' furniture business on south Union avenue. Mrs. West was formerly Miss Chancellor of Franklin, Mo., in which place her father, William Chancellor, is still living. She came to Pueblo about ten years ago, and for five years was a primary teacher in the south side Mont., who had been here most of the summer for her health, and who, only a short time ago underwent an operation at the C. F. & I. hospital, met it with her. They had taken the trip to Cripple Creek for the pleasure and benefit of Mrs. Thompson, who had never seen that part of Colorado. It was their intention in another week to visit their father in Franklin, Mo. John T. West, the brother of ex-Mayor West, had both bodies, which were found by Mr. Richey, one of the men in the store, removed to the home on Michigan street. Mrs. Thompson's husband, a prominent cattleman of Montana, has been telegraphed, as has Mrs. West's father at Franklin. Until they are heard from no funeral arrangements will be made. Mrs. West was a member of the Southern M. E. church.

Herbert R. Groves, whose body was among those discovered yesterday morning, was manager of the Pueblo Plumbing company. He is a native of Vermont and came to Colorado twelve years ago. He established himself in the plumbing business there. He came to Pueblo three years ago, and was first with the Morgan Plumbing company, but was recently made manager of the Pueblo Plumbing company. Mr. Groves had gone to Palmer Lake on Sunday to visit his wife, who was there for her health. The heartbroken widow returned to the city yesterday afternoon. Surviving with her are three sons, aged 9, 16 and 18 years. The deceased was 43 years old, was a member of the Masonic lodge and other organizations.

Miss Anna Pine, who lived with her parents at 724 east Seventh street, was born near Pueblo, had been for four or five years an operator at the central telephone exchange. She was only 20 years of age and a strikingly pretty brunette. Last year Miss Pine erected a pretty little cottage for her mother at Beulah, and the latter was up there for the summer. During her absence Miss Pine was living with Miss Monahan, also a telephone operator, at her home at 724 east Abriendo avenue. She went to Colorado Springs Sunday to see her sister, who is in the hospital there. She and two other operators expected to go east in September to have a month's vacation and see the world's fair.

Miss Irene Wright, whose body was found with that of little 8-year-old Dorothy Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson, was the latter's sister and had made her home with the family for a number of years. She had for nearly a year. It is supposed that his sister-in-law, Pearl Hopper, perished in the wreck, as she was coming from Colorado Springs with him.

Edward A. Hoes, electrician, at the time of his death was employed by F. Ebenhack, electrical contractor, of 111 west C street. The deceased boarded at 150 east Seventh street.

Mrs. Ella Stevens of Northampton, Mass., who perished in the wreck, was a guest at the home of M. H. Rich, 1610 east Sixth street. Mrs. Stevens belonged to a prominent and wealthy family of Northampton.

A. S. Maxwell was a cousin of B. F. Scribner of The Chieftain, and was formerly with The Chieftain. For the past three months Mr. Maxwell had been stenographer at the Pueblo Traction company. His family resides in Kansas.

T. S. Reece, Globe Express company's agent, in charge of the express car on the wrecked train, is dead but his body has not yet been found. Reece is about 29 years old. For eight years he has been in the employ of the company. He is the sole support of an aged mother and several small brothers and sisters. The mother lives at 3237 Gilpin street, Denver.

William E. Hughes of 1009 west Twelfth street, was born in Columbus, O., in 1862. He arrived in Pueblo seventeen years ago and became a partner in the firm of Hughes-Johnson, tin and sheet metal works at 415 Santa Fe avenue. Mr. Hughes is survived by his mother, Mary E. Hughes, and aunt, Laura M. Hughes.

Dr. Walter Furguson Munn came to his death by the wreck of the Missouri Pacific train at Eden, was born in Glasgow, Scotland, June 16, 1867. He graduated from Anderson college, Glasgow. For a time he worked as a machinist. He then studied dentistry at Northwestern university, Chicago, from which he graduated with high honors. In 1898 he married Jennie Adaline Wood at Aurora, Ill. He came to Pueblo, December 29, 1899. He was a master in his profession and soon had a practice worthy of his skill. At a time when his future seemed the brightest he was cut off. Dr. Munn was a member of the First Presbyterian church of this city and for many years a loyal Odd Fellow. His home was spoken of as an ideal one. He loved his home. He was a true and faithful husband and a loving, happy father. Perhaps no man in the city was held in higher esteem than Dr. Munn. Honorable and upright in all was popular. She did well everything she undertook to do. She was much in public life yet always said there is "no place like home." Seldom do we find a brother and sister so intensely devoted to each other as were Miss Emily Weed and her brother Jesse R. Wood. Many friends mourn her departure.

Don Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger M. Campbell, was with his father on the ill-fated train. The family had gone to Manitou for the day, and Mrs. Campbell, who has not been well, decided to stay for a few days. Young Campbell was identified among the dead yesterday. He was about 17 years old and is a student in Central high school. His father's body has not yet been found. Mr. Campbell is a well known contractor and lived with his family at 316 Broadway.

J. Emrich, cashier of the zinc smelter, came to Pueblo with his family from New York City about ten years ago. He was until the first of last January connected with Eller's smelter. Mr. Emrich was about 50 years old. His wife and three sons, the oldest of whom is Horace is a graduate of the State School of Mines at Golden and for the past nine months has been chemist at Ellers' plant in Perth, Amboy, N. J. The other two sons are students in the city schools.

Miss Stella McDonald had been for years a teacher in the schools of Pueblo. She was principal of Minnequa building, and instructor in physical culture for District No. 20. With her widowed mother, Mrs. Emma McDonald, and sister, Miss Alice, who is principal of the Danforth school, she resided at 813 south Union avenue. Her brother, James McDonald, is a Linotype operator at The Chieftain and resides with his family at 711 west Tenth street. Miss McDonald and Dr. James B. McGregor had gone to Colorado Springs to spend the day with Miss Blanch Brown.

Dr. James B. McGregor, whose body was found last night, arrived in Pueblo just five weeks ago from Ballard, Wash., to visit his sisters, Mrs. Jean McGregor Rettberg and Mrs. M. Pannabaker. Three years ago he graduated from the Hahnemann Medical school at Philadelphia, and went immediately to Washington where he had built up a fine practice and made scores of friends. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McGregor, who formerly lived in Pueblo, reside in Ballard with him. Dr.

McGregor had postponed his return home in order that his sister, Mrs. Rettberg, and two little daughters might accompany him, as they expected to spend the summer in Washington. Mrs. Rettberg has been ill and was unable to make the trip sooner. They had planned however, to start on Wednesday. The parents have been notified of their son's tragic death and are on their way to Pueblo for the funeral.
