HEART FAILURE CAUSES IRWIN TO DROP DEAD

Employe of Iron Foundry Succumbs to Sudden Attack--Was Bessemer Pioneer.

John S. Irwin, Sr., of 1410 east Orman avenue, employed in the iron foundry at the steel works dropped dead in the dispensary at 3:25 yesterday afternoon, about two minutes after he had entered the place for medical assistance. His death was due to heart failure. The remains were removed to McCarthy's parlors. The deceased had been an employe of the works for over twenty years.

Irwin had been working quite hard during the day and in fact, had worked steadily until time for the shift to change. All during this time he was not feeling well but decided to work the shift out and then go to the dispensary and learn the nature of his trouble. As he passed through the gate the gateman noticed that he was unusually pale and walked in a rather peculiar and uncertain manner, and thought that perhaps he was sick. Irwin stated that he was not feeling well and went at once to the dispensary, but had no sooner crossed the threshold when he fell to the floor and expired almost instantly. The doctors rushed to his assistance but it was seen at once that the man was beyond human aid.

The deceased was about 59 years old and had lived in Pueblo for about twenty-five years, being one of the pioneers of Bessemer. He is survived by a widow and eight children, Jennie H., Charles M. and John S., Jr., residing in this city.

The funeral arrangements will be made later.
