minutes before.

Then the crowd did go mad. It overran the fences and grasped the aviator's hand and gave him a genuine reception. He took off his cap and said something in French which translated meant: "I will beat it tomorrow." For after the defeat of yesterday, the Frenchman agreed to stay over one more day and give another exhibition of aviation.

INSPECTOR JONES MAKES REPORT ON PRIMERO DISASTER

Special to The Chieftain.

Denver, Feb. 2.—In a long distance telephone conversation with State Coal Mine Inspector Jones, who is at Primero tonight, he states that it would probably be two months before all of the debris occasioned by the explosion of day before yesterday would be cleared away and the bodies recovered. In the conversation he stated to your correspondent that:

"We have succeeded in clearing the mine to the faces of A-11 and A-12 but will be six weeks if not two months before we get all of the debris cleared away and can tell just how many men were killed. The explosion occurred just at quitting time and the men were not in their accustomed rooms but were walking in the passage ways and were caught under the fall of rock and coal. All sides of the entries are badly caved in and I am safe in saying there are hundreds of thousands of tons of rock and coal down that must be moved. As to the cause of the explosion, so far I have no idea what caused it. I hope though to arrive at some conclusion before I get through. There is no doubt in my mind but that dust took quite a prominent part in contributing toward the force of the explosion. The shooting for the evening had not been made. It starts at 6 o'clock and this was before that hour.

"We have taken out fifty bodies already. The company's report would indicate twenty-five more in the mine. I inspected this mine myself on October 29. My deputy inspected it on the 17th and at each inspection it seemed all right."
