the hit-run driver, although he has contended he knows nothing of it, and that he damaged his own machine in a collision with a heavily loaded coal truck that was parked on the highway about two miles west of Manzanola.

On the inside of the right rear fender of the Sewell car and underneath the right running board, officers reported finding splotches of blood.

The Sewell car, brought here from La Junta Tuesday morning when Sewell was returned here and lodged in the county jail, is being held by authorities pending the Thursday inquest.

Firmly convinced the salesman is the hit-run driver, authorities are endeavoring to ascertain his reason for speeding away from the accident scene, leaving the boy
