has been for many months. Special instructions were given out Saturday to the city detectives and police to see that there was no violations of the Sunday closing laws either by clubs or saloons. As the result there were a number of the patrons of the clubs who went without their usual "nip" during the day and evening.

"I issued strict orders to my men," stated Chief of Police Daly yesterday, "to see that there are no violations of the Sunday closing laws. Up until late last evening there had been no arrests for its violation and business in general at the police station was of a quiet nature.
