the south side schools closed very successfully, and the attendance was considerably larger at the close than on the opening day.

Kozjan is Burried

The funeral of Mat Kozjan, who cut his throat on Wednesday last, was held at St. Mary's Austrian church yesterday afternoon. The funeral services were not under the auspices of the order named yetserday, but were in charge of the Holy Trinity society. St. Joseph's society attended as invited in a body, and the church was crowded with over 600 countrymen of the unfortunate. The Austrian band was in attendance at the request of the Holy Trinity society, and the services were characteristic and very impressive.

Father Zupan, of St. Mary's, delivered the funeral sermon, and it was eloquent and strong. He spoke of the man, and his deed and the lessons it brought home to his people, and the hearers were much impressed. The troubles of the Austrians seem to be healing and they are now quite friendly toward the societies which the factions have organized in their district. Complete harmony is expected soon.
