The Rawlings Library is the repository of historically significant and diverse collections, that are historically significant to the city and region. Currently, the archives collection contains 41,972 catalogued items and an estimated 57,130 unique items, many of which are significant to Hispanic origins in the region, state and local history and regional genealogy. A renovated space will provide for larger, more adequate archives storage as well as digitization equipment so patrons can catalogue and chronicle their individual histories.
