The cause involves a question as to the right to follow mineral veins from the apex in the Jordan Extension, Northern Light and other mines in the West Mountain district near Brigham, Utah.

Salt Lake City, Oct. 21.—Col. E. A. Wall is the real plaintiff in the case of Lawton vs. United States Mining company which was decided by the United States supreme court today. Col. Wall holds a lease and bond on the Kempton-Ashton lode claims at Bingham which contains between two and three million dollars worth of lead ore. The Wall claims were located on lead filled fissure veins which cut the lime strata almost at right angles. The United States company, which has the apex of lime formation, contended that the lime was the true lode, and the fissures an incidental mineralization of lime. This contention is upheld by today's decision.
