of Importance

Chairman A. T. Stewart of the board of county commissioners returned last night from Denver, where he attended the meeting of county commissioners to discuss matters of importance to those bodies.

The commissioners drafted a bill for presentation to the legislature which provides that the water commissioners who are appointed by the governor, shall be paid by the state. The bill also provides that the water commissioners shall be appointed by the state engineer. Members of the legislature from every part of the state, irrespective of political affiliations, will be asked to support the bill.

The commissioners also passed a resolution calling upon the state to enlarge the insane asylum in Pueblo, in order that the counties may be relieved of the expense of caring for many insane patients, who cannot be admitted to the asylum. The commissioners endorsed the plan of having the state establish an institution, either as part of the asylum or otherwise, to which imbecile children may be committed.

Resolutions thanking State Engineer Jaycox for help extended during the meeting were presented by the Democratic commissioners and were unanimously adopted.
