Springs man sentenced in credit card incident

William D. Calvin Jr., 36, of Colorado Springs was sentenced to two years in prison Tuesday for fraudulent use of a credit card here earlier this year.

Noting that Calvin (also known as David L. Lawton) had two previous felony convictions, District Judge Thomas F. Phelps denied probation and also denied the defendant's request to be placed in the Rocky Mountain Community Corrections program here.

Calvin pleaded guilty to a charge that he used a stolen and forged credit card on Jan. 12 with intent to defraud the card's owner as well as American Express Inc. and a Pueblo department store. Two other charges originally filed against him were dropped under a plea agreement with the district attorney's office.
