

Celebrate Native American Heritage Month

Leon Littlebird Flutist Concert

Tuesday, Nov. 5, 7 p.m., RA,
InfoZone Theater-4th floor

All ages. Leon Littlebird is an internationally acclaimed musician, recording artist and performer. Leon embodies the spirit of Colorado. With roots in both pioneer and native cultures he understands the magic of the mountains and the southwest.

His great grandfather was one of the original settlers in Blackhawk Colorado, and his great-uncle was a classical composer and performer in Silver Plume and Georgetown. This connection to the rich history of Colorado comes through in Leon's music.

A prolific songwriter and performer, his unique style tells tales of Colorado and the people of the west. His performances shape compelling stories into a musical show.

Reacquaint yourself with the classics

Jon Walker

by Jon Walker

You now will find in our local libraries new displays of classic books. Why are classics important? As a longtime librarian and avid reader, I have asked myself this question a number of times over the years. The answer is surprisingly simple. Classic literature plays a central role in helping us understand who we are.

Books do not appear in a vacuum and great books work on multiple levels. Classics communicate timeless values of what it means to be human. Yet, each is written within the context of time and place, which also becomes part of the reader's experience. This means classic literature communicates universal human values interpreted through the lens of history. These books impart both humanity and tradition. This is a reason reading classic literature invite us to ponder deeply and concentrate.

I encourage you to do just this. Peruse our libraries' classic books, find one for you, read and think.
