A Library for Panimachivac

by Jon Walker

PCCLD currently is taking final steps constructing three new libraries in underserved areas of our county. As we count down the days until these new libraries open to the public, I recently had a unique opportunity to see this effort in a different light.

In July, I worked onsite in a remote village in Guatemala with a group helping build a new community library. I learned many things there, including what we take for granted here in our community can be a luxury somewhere else.

Guatemala is located in a historically rich region, where the indigenous Maya civilization dates back more than two-thousand years with a written language, beautiful works of art, sophisticated practices in mathematics and astronomy, advanced architectural and construction techniques and more. Today, however, Guatemala is a poor country where individual families possess only about five percent of the earning power compared with the typical household in the USA. The people of Guatemala were long subjugated by the Spanish and more recently the area was torn by civil war for nearly forty years from 1960 until the late 1990s. The country's economy today principally is tied to agriculture and textiles, but it lacks some basic modern infrastructure such as reliable electricity, available machinery and potable water. When peace finally came to Guatemala, many citizens for the first time were guaranteed certain basic rights that we accept as a given in the USA, such as access to public education that only recently has become available to most citizens there through sixth grade.

Today, with peace in their nation, there are significant efforts underway to modernize Guatemala. This includes work to establish schools and libraries. My recent time there—along with members of the Pueblo Rotary Club and others—was part of a much bigger effort to provide the citizens of the area with improved access to education, information and literacy.

We worked mainly on preliminary construction of a library in Panimachivac, a community located in the distant highlands of the country, but we also visited the site of a recently completed community library that was a year in the making in the village of La Loma. Almost all work there is done by hand with very little machinery and only basic tools. Our USA team worked on the library during the day, and we were joined by villagers in the late afternoon as they returned from their daily toil in neighboring agricultural fields. Our effort was coordinated by PAVA, an in-country non-profit organization dedicated to helping the people of Guatemala.

I could not help but compare my daily life in Pueblo with the locals I worked alongside in Panimachivac and met in La Loma. Many of the things that we accept as given here are luxuries there, such as indoor plumbing, motorized transportation, professional healthcare, and so on.

Even our relatively modest contribution to enable greater access to information and literacy is important. One story can help illustrate this. Only the younger generation there commonly enjoys access to education. This means older people are often illiterate. So, it is meaningful now when a young girl in the village of La Loma can take out a book from the new library there on a topic like astronomy. She had learned to read in school and took the book home to read to her father, who is illiterate. He told her that although he had seen the stars, moon and sun, he never knew until that moment beyond what he saw in the sky.

My visit to Guatemala provided me with a fresh view of the rich life and opportunities afforded us here in the USA, which are what dreams are made of in places like Panimachivac and La Loma. It reinforced for me the universal value of free and open access to information, the joy of reading, and the importance of libraries, not only here in Pueblo but also around the world.

Kyla Zamora finished her ninth year of summer reading and brought all her medals to Rawlings to show Youth Services.

Puppeteer ventriloquist Meghan Casey entertained an audience of summer reading participants in July.

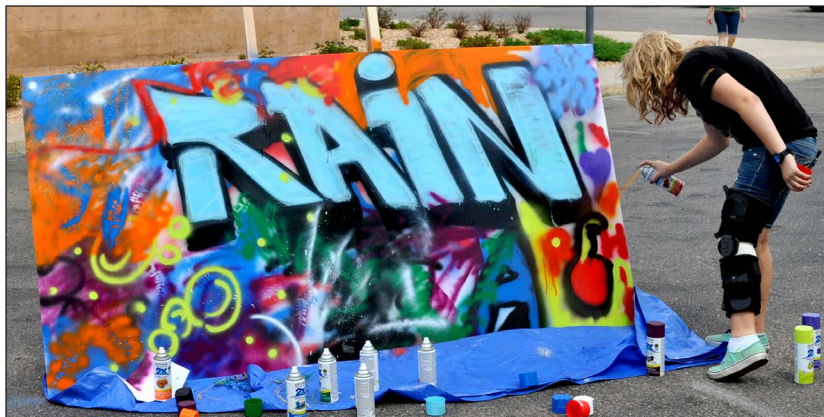

Fundraiser breakfast were held at the end of July for the three new libraries being built. Pueblo Library Foundation President Julie Rodriguez spoke to a crowd at the Patrick A. Lucero Library.

Tweens at Rawlings Library explored motion and simple machines during Mousetrap Science in July and built marshmallow catapults.

Smokey Bear celebrated his 70th birthday in August at Rawlings Library. Those in attendance watched a short film on how to prevent forest fires and saw emergency vehicles up close. Kids also had the opportunity to color birthday cards to give to Smokey Bear.

The rain held out for Art Bash long enough for artists to try their hand at balloon and spray painting during the Art Bash.

Fade to Pueblo's Past Photography Exhibit

Opening reception, Friday, Sept. 5, 6-8:30 p.m.

Rawlings, InfoZone-4th floor

Exhibit runs Saturday, Sept. 6 through Monday, Sept. 29

Rawlings, InfoZone-4th floor

Interested in Pueblo's past, photography and the emotion of times gone by juxtaposed with what's happening in today's world? Join photographers, Linda Cates and Holly Ward as they present powerful and historic images depicting Pueblo's past culture, events and tragedies. Through composite photography and ingenuity, experience their artistic interpretation while reflecting upon events that have molded Pueblo into the strong, diverse community it is today.

Moving Mexican Descent Women to the Center

Thursday, Sept. 18, 7 p.m., Rawlings, InfoZone-4th floor

Join Sarah Deutsch, Ph.D., professor of history at Duke for a presentation about women of Mexican descent who negotiated a changing landscape in Southern Colorado in the early years of the 20th century. Learn how they took a more central role in their villages as men left for work, moved into coal mining towns and ran boarding houses, taught school, demanded rights and voted. See how they changed the landscape for themselves and their families. This program is co-sponsored by CSU-Pueblo and is part of the Ludlow Centennial Speaker Series.

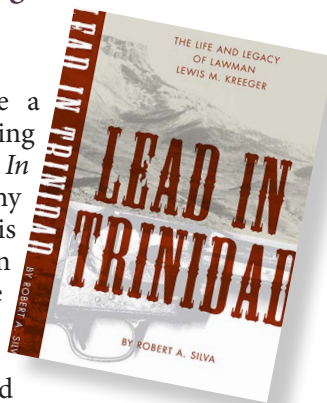

Sarah Deutsch, Ph.D.

The Deflowering of Eva Van End
Dutch, English and German with English subtitles
Saturday, Sept. 20 at 7 p.m.

In this blend of satire and sincerity, a dysfunctional family gets turned on its head when the "perfect" exchange student moves in.

Every member of the Van End family is preoccupied with his or her own peculiar fixation—be it father's Skype relationship with a boy in Africa (seemingly his only functional relationship), or the mother's relentless tirades against her dope-dealing youngest son or praises for her eldest son about to marry. Trapped in the middle—15 year-old Eva—struggles for any attention at all. When Veit, the Adonis German exchange student Eva invited, moves in, the family is shocked and each family member must confront his or her own doubts, insecurities, fears and desires. During Veit's two-week stay, all five family members began to reinvent themselves led by former wallflower, Eva, who begins a dramatic transformation.

Changes to material requests begin Sept. 2

Looking for a book or other material that Pueblo City-County Library doesn't have in its collection? Submit a purchase request or borrow it through Interlibrary Loan! The library will purchase books, movies, and other materials published within the last two years, and can borrow older materials owned by libraries in Colorado and the United States.

Interlibrary Loan (ILL) requests:

Use ILL for materials that were published more than two years ago. Go to www.pueblolibrary.org and select Interlibrary Loan under the services tab. Click on Search for an Item Now. Search for the requested item, click on the correct record, and select the Click Here to Order link. Complete and submit the request form. If the material is able to be requested, a hold will be placed for it. Patrons are allowed a total of five active ILL requests at a time.

Purchase requests:

Be sure the requested material for purchase has been released within the last two years. Go to www.pueblolibrary.org, log in with a library card account number, click on the Suggested Purchases link on the bottom left, and fill out the Make a Suggestion form. Patrons can check the status of their requests, and holds for purchased materials will be placed by staff. Patrons are allowed five purchase requests a month.

Friends of the Library president's corner

by Doreen Martinez

The purpose of the Friends of the Pueblo City-County Library District is to "help the library system make educational, informational, cultural, and recreational services available to the public." Friends of the Library assists our library district in multiple ways each year. The main source of revenue for the Friends of the Library is our used book store, Books Again, located at 622 S. Union Ave (southeast of the Rawlings Library). As a member of the Friends of the Library, patrons of Books Again receive an additional 10 percent discount off books already discounted 75 percent or more off the list price. Books Again is currently offering all hardback fiction books written by authors whose last names begin with Q and R through the end of September. The next Book by the Bag sale will be held Oct. 3 and 4. Members of Friends of the Library will be allowed to shop the special "Member Day" on Thursday, Oct. 2. Mark your calendars!

The volunteers at Books Again are the most valuable asset to our organization. They participated in the Colorado State Fair Kids' Day Parade this year. They also handed out a free book to every child in attendance.

Now is the perfect opportunity to become a member of Friends of the Library. Fill out a membership form (brochures available at all library locations) and begin enjoying the perks of membership and the satisfaction of supporting our library district today.
